Great vision without great people is irrelevant, and our people really are the best. The best at what they do and the best at how they do it.

And the great thing is, they keep striving to be even better! Our people, their skills and ambitions are as important to us as are our clients. We can't deliver a great service without great people after all...

We offer a service that not many businesses do, we provide seven integrated services under one roof. Our aim is to be the best provider of each of our services in Cumbria, South West Scotland and further afield.

David Allen

Founding Partner

David Allen

I love work, I love the brand, I love everything about the company and our people.

Back in 1997, I had a vision to deliver a great service and offer much more when it came to the services available.

I qualified as a Chartered Accountant in 1995 and gained my practising certificate on Monday 24 March 1997. That same day I started David Allen Chartered Accountants from my garage in Dalston.

I'm very proud of the way the business has evolved from being a Chartered Accountants to now having a multi-discipline service offering, from IT to debt recovery. I'm also very proud of the team we have nurtured, with many having studied for new qualifications and grown along with us over the years.

Alison Welton

I joined the David Allen team in 2004 and I have never looked back! There were only 25 members of staff when I joined #TeamDA, so I have seen amazing growth, development and opportunities for the team working across the David Allen group.

When looking for a practice to join, I had heard amazing things about David Allen. After reading their story, I knew they were the firm that I wanted to work for. It was a forward thinking and innovative practice which put people development and opportunities at the heart of everything it did.

My greatest professional achievement was in 2008, I became the first appointed Partner in the practice and I have since been promoted to Managing Partner. It is a real honour to play an active part in the strategy and development of the firm and to work with a great team of colleagues and clients.
